WP(C) NO. 16606 OF 2004

Dated, this the 13th day of February, 2007

J U D G M E N T

Petitioner approached this court for a direction to the University to permit the petitioner to write the eighth semester examination, which the petitioner was not qualified to write, as he has not passed all the examinations up to fourth semester. Even though this court has upheld the examination regulations, the learned Standing Counsel submitted that there has been relaxation in the regulation permitting the students to write later examinations without passing earlier examinations. It is stated that petitioner wrote the examination under the interim orders and the results are published. In view of the relaxation in the examination regulation, I direct the University to consider petitioner's eligibility with reference to changed regulations, and, if petitioner is eligible at least as of law, treat the examination written by the petitioner as valid and declare result.
